

BRAEMAR EVAPORATIVE COOLING CUSTOMER REVIEWS

February 2009

Being an electrician by trade I carefully compared running costs, ease of maintenance and reliability issues of many evaporative units. Speaking to many in the trade, I was directed by the above issues to Braemar. A friend at work had an evaporative unit also and was wrapped with his, so I decided to purchase one. Installation and running costs made refrigerated units or split systems undesirable for me, although many people recommended them. Running cost was the reason I decided not to get refrigerated! Being unsure at first whether I had made the correct decision for evaporative, since I've had it installed I have ABSOLUTELY NO REGRETS! Quiet, low cost of running fresh air through the house, I should have done it years ago. At night when it cools down its great, fresh air from outside, evacuates stale air in the house - its great! The model Braemar we purchased has a remote dump valve and auto water saver which are both very handy to have. Auto temperature control is great. You just set it and leave it and it automatically cuts out water pump then fan speed to suit the temperature in the house. When we go to sleep we leave it on 'auto' and just sleep and let the controller do the work and its accurate and cheap to run.

We just beat the heatwave in Melbourne. We had many quotes done and most of them said that Braemar was the best. We are extremely happy with our system and can see why it's up there with the best. Thank God for cooling!

We contacted our dealer and we got an explanation about three different air conditioners they represented - it was easy for us to choose Braemar. The components like filter, automatic cleaning and the totally enclosed tropical proof motor, as well as how the system had been built together, triggered our confidence in it. So we ordered it immediately. We are very happy with the unit.

'Good things come to those who wait' - after 27 years without ducted airconditioning we are now enjoying cool comfort throughout the house (night & day) with our Braemar LCB550. We have very hot summers but the Braemar is coping extremely well. The service we received from the dealer from our initial enquiries to installation was second to none - extremely helpful and efficient. Without a doubt we got the best product for our money.
